About CPAA

Cancer Patients Aid Association (CPAA) was established in 1969, to provide support and assistance to underprivileged cancer patients. Over the last fifty years the organisation has expanded its vision and looked to address the causes of the rapid increase in cancer incidence in India. CPAA works alongside with Medical Oncologists, Physicians and Hospitals, focusing on education, awareness, early detection, cancer insurance, support to treatment, guidance, counseling, rehabilitation and research. While the primary concern is to meet the needs of poor cancer patients who otherwise would not be able to benefit from the best treatments that medical science has to offer, CPAA is now trying to reach out to patients from all walks of life in every possible way. With years of experience in cancer management, CPAA now mentors other health care organisations across India. CPAA has offices in Mumbai, New Delhi and Pune, and draws its entire annual budget from corporate and individual donations.

The objective of CPAA is 'Total Management of Cancer', which includes:

- Raising awareness through lectures
- Early detection through screening
- Providing total care for cancer patients
- Rehabilitating cancer patients and their family members
- Research work on psychosocial issues related to cancer
- Advocacy for anti tobacco legislation and patient rights

Our comprehensive and informative website cancer.org.in can be accessed for further information on our projects, campaigns and activities. You can also follow us on Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/CPAAIndia>

About Sahayata

CPAA's Patient Care Department renders a wide variety of help on the emotional, financial and medical fronts to cancer patients. Every month, new patients are referred to us. On registration, their medical history is noted and after understanding their prognosis and the recommended course of treatment, their specific needs are identified. The questions they are often unable to ask their doctors are addressed here too. Through this deep and involved discussion, CPAA realised that they had touched upon a vast range of needs that no other NGO had ever covered.

The concept of Sahayata arose from the need CPAA recognised for putting the reins of decision making responsibility back in the hands of the patient. Even the most well educated person, when faced with cancer, becomes uncertain and finds himself unable to take considered decisions. The terms are unfamiliar, the choices bewildering and the consequences of a wrong turn potentially devastating. 'Sahayata', as the name suggests, is a quick reference on community help and welfare services pertaining to cancer-related issues. It is not intended as a guide to self-treatment but provides credible information on cancer and the related resources in the city of Mumbai. This booklet aims to help the individual to understand the options available at a glance be it hospitals for treatment, specialist doctors or budget places to stay.

Basic Cancer Information

CANCER BASICS:

1) What is cancer?

Cancer is the uncontrolled growth of abnormal cells in the body. Each cell in the body contains DNA in its nucleus which controls its life cycle. For many reasons, this control mechanism stops working. Old cells do not die and instead grow out of control, forming new, abnormal cells, or a tumour.

2) What are the early symptoms of cancer?

Usually, early cancer does not cause pain. The signs or symptoms will depend on where the cancer is, how big it is, and how much it affects the organs or tissues. But sometimes cancer starts in places where it won't cause symptoms until it has grown quite large. Given below are certain general signs and symptoms to watch out for. There may be other causes for each of these, but it's important to see a doctor about them as soon as possible – especially if there's no other cause you can identify, the problem lasts a long time, or it gets worse over time. Do not wait to feel pain.

- White patches inside the mouth or white spots on the tongue
- Recent change or bleeding in a wart or mole or sores that do not heal
- Nagging cough or hoarseness
- Excessive weakness or fatigue
- Unexplained weight loss or changes in appetite
- Indigestion or trouble swallowing
- Persistent back pain
- Unexplained night sweats
- Difficult or painful urination
- Unusual bleeding or discharge
- Thickening or lump in the breast or other parts of the body
- Testicular lumps
- Rectal bleeding
- Unexplained fevers

Basic Cancer Information

3) What causes cancer?

Though it is very difficult to pinpoint any definite cause, certain substances, known as carcinogens, can definitely increase your chances of getting cancer.

- Some cancers are caused by faulty lifestyles. For example, tobacco use can cause cancers of the head and neck region; early menarche and late menopause can cause breast cancer or early marriage, multiple pregnancies, history of sexually transmitted disease and multiple sexual partners can cause cervical cancer.
- Overexposure to sun without protection can cause skin cancer.
- Exposure to radiation or nuclear fallout can cause cancer. Sometimes, radiation treatment for one type of cancer can cause another cancer to grow many years later. Certain chemicals have been linked to cancer, too. Being exposed to or working with them can increase a person's risk of cancer.
- About 5 - 10 % of all cancers are linked to genes or mutations that are inherited from parents.

Some cancers are caused by viruses- Human papilloma viruses (HPVs)-cervical cancer; Epstein-Barr virus (EBV)-Burkitt lymphoma; Hepatitis B virus (HBV) and hepatitis C virus (HCV)- liver cancer; Human immunodeficiency virus (HIV)-Kaposi sarcoma.

4) What are the risk factors for cancer?

A risk factor is a faulty lifestyle factor that increases your chance of getting a disease, such as cancer. Some of the major cancer risk factors that can be controlled:

- Tobacco use
- Unhealthy or faulty Diet
- No Physical activity
- Being over-weight or obese
- Alcohol use
- Sun exposure
- Environmental exposures, such as radon, lead, and asbestos
- Exposure to infections such as hepatitis, HPV, and HIV

Basic Cancer Information

5) How does cancer spread? What is metastasis?

A cancerous cell originating in one organ of the body has the ability to move using the blood or lymphatic systems to other organs, colonising and destroying healthy tissue in the process. That cell manages to divide and grow, making new blood vessels to feed itself. This process is called metastasis.

6) What are the different types of Cancers?

Cancers are divided into different types based on where they originate:

- Carcinoma: They are the most common types of cancers. A carcinoma begins in the skin or the tissue that covers the surface of internal organs and glands. Carcinomas usually form solid tumours. Examples of carcinomas include prostate cancer, breast cancer, lung cancer, and colorectal cancer.
- Sarcomas: A sarcoma begins in the tissues that support and connect the body like the fat, muscles, nerves, tendons, joints, blood or lymph vessels, cartilage or bone. Examples are osteosarcoma, chondrosarcoma, liposarcoma and leiomyosarcoma.
- Leukemia: Cancers that begin in the blood-forming tissue of the bone marrow are called leukemia. These cancers do not form solid tumours. A large numbers of abnormal white blood cells build up in the blood and bone marrow, crowding out normal blood cells. The four main types of leukemia are acute lymphocytic leukemia (ALL), chronic lymphocytic leukemia (CLL), acute myeloid leukemia (AML), and chronic myeloid leukemia (CML).
- Lymphomas: Lymphoma is a cancer that begins in the immune system of the body i.e. a network of vessels and glands that help fight infection. There are two main types: Hodgkin's lymphoma and non-Hodgkin's lymphoma.
- Multiple Myeloma: Multiple myeloma is cancer that begins in plasma cells, another type of immune cell. The abnormal plasma cells, called myeloma cells, build up in the bone marrow and form tumours in bones all through the body.

Basic Cancer Information

- Melanoma: Melanoma is cancer that begins in cells that make melanin, the pigment that gives skin its colour. Most melanomas form on the skin, but melanomas can also form in other pigmented tissues, such as the eye.
- Brain and Spinal Cord Tumours: The central nervous system cancer tumours develop in the brain and spinal cord. These tumours are named based on the type of cell in which they formed and where the tumour first formed in the central nervous system.

DIAGNOSIS AND TREATMENT:

7) Why should cancer be diagnosed and treated early?

The sooner a cancer is found the less likely it is to have spread to other parts of the body making it easier to treat, less painful, expensive and chances of a complete cure become greater.

8) How is cancer diagnosed? How can a doctor tell if a growth is cancerous?

An evident cancer sign or symptom usually takes you to your doctor who may refer you for further tests. Cancer is nearly always confirmed by an expert who has looked at cell or tissue samples under a microscope.

9) What are the different tools or techniques of cancer diagnosis?

If you have a symptom or your screening test result suggests cancer, the doctor must find out whether it is due to cancer or some other cause. Along with your personal and family medical history the doctor also may order laboratory tests, scans, or other procedures. Lab tests are an important tool to help the doctors come to a final diagnosis and appropriate treatment protocol.

Imaging Procedures: Imaging procedures create pictures of areas inside your body that help the doctor see whether a tumour is present. These pictures can be made in several ways:

- a. X-rays: X-rays use low doses of radiation to create pictures of the inside of your body.

Basic Cancer Information

- b. Ultrasound: An ultrasound device sends out sound waves that people cannot hear. The waves bounce off tissues inside your body like an echo. A computer uses these echoes to create a picture of areas inside your body. This picture is called a sonogram.
- c. CT Scan: An x-ray machine linked to a computer takes a series of detailed pictures of your organs. You may receive a dye or other contrast material to highlight areas inside the body. Contrast material helps make these pictures easier to read.
- d. MRI: A strong magnet linked to a computer is used to make detailed pictures of areas in your body. Your doctor can view these pictures on a monitor and print them on film.
- e. Nuclear scan: For this scan, you receive an injection of a small amount of radioactive material, which is sometimes called a tracer. It flows through your bloodstream and collects in certain bones or organs. A machine called a scanner detects and measures the radioactivity. The scanner creates pictures of bones or organs on a computer screen or on film.
- f. PET scan: For this scan, you receive an injection of a tracer. Then, a machine makes 3-D pictures that show where the tracer collects in the body. These scans show how organs and tissues are working.
- g. Biopsy: In most cases, doctors need to do a biopsy to confirm a diagnosis of cancer. A biopsy is a procedure in which the doctor removes a sample of tissue. A pathologist then looks at the tissue under a microscope to see if it is cancer. The sample may be removed in several ways:
 - i. With a needle: (FNAC - Fine Needle Aspiration Cytology) The doctor uses a needle to withdraw tissue or fluid.
 - ii. With an endoscope: The doctor looks at areas inside the body using a thin, lighted tube called an endoscope. The scope is inserted through a natural opening, such as the mouth. Then, the doctor uses a special tool to remove tissue or cells through the tube.

Basic Cancer Information

ii. With surgery: Surgery may be excisional or incisional.

- In an excisional biopsy, the surgeon removes the entire tumor. Often some of the normal tissue around the tumor also is removed to create clear margins.

- In an incisional biopsy, the surgeon removes just part of the tumor.

10) What is Staging?

Staging is the process of identifying where a cancer is located and measuring how far a cancer has spread when it is first diagnosed. Knowing the stage of your cancer helps your doctor to:

- Determine the most effective treatment or combination of treatments for the patient.
- Discuss the prognosis entire health care team and the patients and family
- Determine treatment effectiveness
- Compare larger populations with the same diagnosis to research new, more effective cancer treatments

11) How is Stage Determined?

On the basis of the tests, scans and other procedures ordered by the doctors, the stage of cancer is determined.

The numbered system uses stage numbers to identify how far cancer has spread:

- Stage 0 Cancer : Often referred to as 'in-situ' cancer means the cancer cells are still in the place where they started and have not spread at all
- Stage 1 Cancer: Is small and has only spread a little into nearby tissues. It has not spread to any lymph nodes or other body areas.
- Stage 2 and 3 Cancer: Means it is larger and may have spread to nearby tissues or lymph nodes
- Stage 4 Cancer: Has spread to other areas of the body. Stage 4 cancer is also called metastatic cancer or advanced cancer.

Basic Cancer Information

In the TNM system, there are three categories:

- T = tumour
- N = lymph nodes
- M = metastases

Each of these categories is given a score, and together these scores show how far the cancer has spread.

12) How should cancer be treated?

The treatment comprises of surgery, chemotherapy, radiation therapy and/or biologic/targeted therapy in any suitable combination.

13) What do different types of cancer treatment entail?

There are many types of cancer treatment. The types of treatment that you receive will depend on the type of cancer you have and how advanced it is. The most common types of cancer treatment include:

- a. Surgery: Surgery is a procedure in which a surgeon removes the cancerous tissue or organ and the tissue from the nearby area that might contain cancer cells. Doctors usually opt for surgery if the cancer seems to be contained in one area (localised). Sometimes it's hard to tell how much surgery is needed until the surgeon sees the extent of the cancer during the operation. Surgery is most successful when the tumour has not spread to other areas.
- b. Radiation Therapy: Radiation therapy or radiotherapy, often abbreviated RT, RTx, or XRT, is therapy using ionizing radiation in appropriate doses to kill or shrink tumours. Radiation destroys cancer cells or damages them so they can't grow.

External radiation: High-energy rays are aimed from an machine. External radiation is as painless as having an x-ray taken and is usually done in an outpatient setting. The treatment takes very little time and is most often given 5 days a week for 5 to 8 weeks, depending on the size, place, and type of cancer being treated.

Basic Cancer Information

Internal radiation or Brachytherapy: In some cases, radiation may be given through pellets of radioactive material placed in or near the tumour. Such implants allow a person to get a higher total dose of radiation to a smaller area and in a shorter amount of time than with external radiation.

c. Chemotherapy: Chemotherapy is a treatment that includes a medication or combination of medications to treat cancer. The drugs target cells growing at a fast rate such as cancer cells but also affect healthy cells such as those that line your mouth and intestines and hair, causing side effects.

d. Immunotherapy: In the last few decades immunotherapy has become an important part of treating some types of cancer. It is a type of biological therapy, which means it uses substances made from living organisms to treat cancer. It may work in these ways:

- Stopping or slowing the growth of cancer cells
- Stopping cancer from spreading to other parts of the body
- Helping the immune system work better at destroying cancer cells

There are several types of immunotherapy, including:

- Monoclonal antibodies
- Non-specific immunotherapy
- Oncolytic virus therapy
- T-cell therapy
- Cancer vaccines

e. Targeted Therapy: Targeted therapy is a special type of chemotherapy that takes advantage of differences between normal cells and cancer cells zeroing in on some of the changes that help them grow, divide, and spread fast and abnormally.

Targeted drugs can work to:

- Block or turn off chemical signals that tell the cancer cell to grow and divide
- Change proteins within the cancer cells so the cells die
- Stop making new blood vessels to feed the cancer cells
- Trigger your immune system to kill the cancer cells
- Carry toxins to the cancer cells to kill them, but not normal cells

Basic Cancer Information

As researchers learn more about the cell changes that drive cancer, they are better able to design promising therapies that target these changes or block their effects.

- f. Hormone Therapy: Hormone therapy is a treatment that uses medicines to block or lower the amount of hormones in the body to slow down or stop the growth of cancer especially to treat prostate and breast cancers that use hormones to grow. Hormone therapy is used to:
- Treat cancer. Hormone therapy can lessen the chance that cancer will return or stop or slow its growth.
 - Ease cancer symptoms. Hormone therapy may be used to reduce or prevent symptoms in men with prostate cancer who are not able to have surgery or radiation therapy.
- g. Stem Cell Transplant: Stem cell transplants are procedures that restore blood-forming stem cells in people who have had their destroyed by very high doses of chemotherapy or radiation therapy. Healthy blood-forming stem cells are infused through a needle in the vein. Once it enters the bloodstream, the stem cells travel to the bone marrow, where they take the place of the cells that were destroyed by treatment. The blood-forming stem cells that are used in transplants can come from the bone marrow, bloodstream, or umbilical cord. Transplants can be:
- Autologous, which means the stem cells come from the patient themselves.
 - Allogeneic, which means the stem cells come from someone else, a blood relative or someone who is not related but is a close tissue match.
 - Syngeneic, which means the stem cells come from your identical twin, if you have one

It is very important that the donor and recipient are a close tissue match to avoid graft rejection. Graft rejection happens when the recipient's immune system recognizes the donor cells as foreign and tries to destroy them.

- h. Precision Medicine: Precision medicine is an approach to patient care that allows doctors to select treatments that are most likely to help patients based on a genetic understanding of their disease. This may also be called personalised medicine. Until recently, doctors didn't know why people with the same diagnosis sometimes respond to the same treatment differently. After decades of research, scientists now understand that

- i. Tumours have genetic changes that cause cancer to grow and spread
- ii. The changes that occur in one person's tumour cancer may not occur in others who have the same type of cancer
- iii. The same cancer-causing changes may be found in different types of cancer

The hope of precision medicine is that treatments will one day be tailored to the changes in each person's cancer and patients will receive drugs that their tumours are most likely to respond to.

14) What are the Side Effects of Cancer treatments?

Cancer treatments can cause side effects, problems that occur when treatment affects healthy tissues or organs. Side effects vary from person to person and depend upon the amount or frequency of the treatment, age and other health conditions, the most common known side effects caused by cancer treatment include:

- Anaemia (tired, short of breath, and light-headed)
- Alopecia (Hair Loss)
- Appetite Loss
- Bleeding and Bruising (Thrombocytopenia)
- Constipation
- Diarrhoea
- Edema (a condition in which fluid builds up in your body's tissues causing swelling or puffiness)
- Lymphedema
- Fatigue
- Infection
- Neutropenia
- Memory or Concentration Problems
- Mouth and Throat Problems
- Nausea and Vomiting

Basic Cancer Information

- Nerve Problems (Peripheral Neuropathy)
- Pain
- Sexual and Fertility Problems (Men/Women)
- Skin and Nail Changes
- Sleep Problems
- Urinary and Bladder Problems

15) Are there any general precautions and health care tips during cancer treatment?

Patients need to take special care of their health during cancer treatment. Here are some general tips:

- Be sure to get plenty of rest and sleep as you may feel more tired than usual.
- Eat a balanced, healthy diet. Consult a nutritionist or dietician.
- Tell your cancer care team about all medicines and supplements you're taking.
- Take special care of the skin in the treatment area as it may become more sensitive or look and feel sunburned.

AFTER TREATMENT:

16) If you have been cured of cancer, can you develop another cancer? In the same place? In some other part of the body?

About 1 - 3% of patients develop a second cancer different from the original one, called a second primary. However, a cancer can reappear at any time during survivorship, the most common time being from five to nine years after completion of treatment. This makes it very important for cancer survivors to maintain good follow-up health care. Lifetime monitoring by health care providers who are knowledgeable about survivorship care is recommended.

17) What are the factors that affect prognosis?

Some of the factors that affect prognosis include:

- The type of cancer and where it is in your body

Basic Cancer Information

- The stage of the cancer, which refers to the size of the cancer and if it has spread to other parts of your body
- The cancer's grade, which refers to how aggressive the cancer cells look under a microscope. Grade provides clues about how quickly the cancer is likely to grow and spread.
- The patient's age and how healthy they were before cancer
- How you respond to treatment

18) What is the Difference between Cure and Remission?

Cure means that there are no traces of your cancer after treatment and the cancer will never come back. Remission means that the signs and symptoms of your cancer are reduced. Remission can be partial or complete. In a complete remission, all signs and symptoms of cancer have disappeared. If you remain in complete remission for 5 years or more, some doctors may say that you are cured. Still, some cancer cells can remain in your body for many years after treatment. These cells may cause a relapse. It is best to be aware of the risk factors for second cancers and maintain good follow-up health care under advice from your doctor or knowledgeable health care providers.
